Canadian Eh?
A History of the Nation’s Signs and Symbols
January 7 to May 7, 2017
Interior Gallery

Opening Reception: Sunday, February 5 at 1:00 pm

What symbols make you think of Canada? Perhaps it’s the Canadian flag or the beaver? Or maybe it’s the game of hockey or lacrosse? These are just some of the many symbols that have come to represent the nation in popular culture. They help to communicate our history and our culture, and to establish our distinct national identity. But there are many unofficial symbols that do the same thing. For some it’s our varied landscape and climate, or foods such as poutine or maple syrup. For others, it’s the values enshrined in our Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

Through art and artifacts from the Museum London collection, this exhibition explores the history of symbols that have come to express the Canadian identity. Visitors of course will see snow shoes and the de rigueur toque. They will encounter Jack Canuck, Mounties, and the big Bonhomme de neige, as well as real-life Canadian icons such as Tecumseh, Laura Secord, Terry Fox, David Suzuki, Buffy Sainte-Marie and Stompin’ Tom Connors, Wayne Gretzky and Maurice “the Rocket” Richard. Works of art and images, from currency and popular culture, illustrate quintessential vistas and iconic animals including the beaver, moose, polar bear, Canada goose and the loon, in this dynamic exhibition of Canadian signs and symbols.

Brian Jones: The Sun Shines in All Yards
January 28 to May 7, 2017
Moore & Volunteer Galleries

Opening Reception: Sunday, February 5 at 1:00 pm

The exhibition documents the work of artist Brian Jones, representing his meticulous technique and inventive imagery through selected drawings, prints, oil, and watercolour paintings.

Jones’ practice encompasses early figurative works and landscapes inspired by the look of family photographs and youthful memories; investigations of dramatic light and shape; and a long-running, lyrical ode to suburban North American family life. Over the course of his career, Jones developed two concurrent styles for which he garnered acclaim: one highly realistic, and the other eccentric and unique. The latter came to be known as his Neighbours series, sampling the title of a 1973 painting of homeowners looking out from hedge-divided yards. In these paintings, his subjects go about their daily business: tending their lawns, walking their dogs, spending leisure time with their families, rushing to and from work. By depicting individuals in flamboyant, stylized poses, sculpturesque, often symmetrical forms and vivid colour, Jones made each narrative a celebration of everyday verve and plenty. At first glance apolitical, the pieces are emotionally layered, expressing shared dreams and uncertainties.

The exhibition features works drawn from the collections of Museum London and the McIntosh Gallery, as well as private loans from collectors in London, Toronto, and beyond. A publication accompanying the exhibition will follow in the spring.
Canada 150: A Student Exhibition
January 28 to April 23, 2017
Lawson Gallery
Opening Reception: Sunday, February 5 at 1:00 pm

For this exhibition, Museum London invited elementary and secondary students (K-12) in the Thames Valley District School Board and the London District Catholic School Board to reflect on the theme of Canada’s 150th anniversary of Confederation and to create artwork in a variety of media. Students were asked to submit work along with an artist statement, from which approximately 150 pieces were selected for this exhibition. Selections were made based on the following criteria: does the artwork address the theme, incorporate an effective use of elements and principles of design, communicate feelings or ideas, demonstrate an understanding of composition, show originality and imagination, and make an effective use of technical skills and media appropriate to the grade level?

Important moments in Canadian history, the diversity of Canadian people, and the richness of our country’s culture all served as inspiration. Iconic landscapes and special places, animals, nature, sports, music, food, family, and community were the source of ideas for these budding artists.

Highlights from 150 Years of Art-Making in London
February 4 to April 23, 2017
Ivey Galleries
Opening Reception: Sunday, February 5 at 1:00 pm

This exhibition celebrates the rich artistic output of London, Ontario from its earliest days as a city in the mid-1800s through to today. Sampling historical and contemporary offerings, selected highlights will draw from Museum London’s rich collection of regional art. Presented in three parts, the exhibition begins with a survey of noteworthy creations from 1867 through to the 1950s, featuring works by familiar and well-known local painters from London's storied past.

The middle portion of the exhibition features a selection of artworks by artists who gave rise to London Regionalism, the art movement of the late 1950s and 1960s sparked by local practitioners who championed their home as the centre and subject of creative activity. By the late 1960s, the movement became an object of interest for Canadian art critics, notably art historian Barry Lord, whose 1969 Art in America article acclaimed London as “the most important art centre in Canada and a model for artists working elsewhere, the site of ‘Canada’s first regional liberation front.’”

The exhibition concludes with notable works by contemporary artists that continue to capture and reflect on London, and the region, as the subject and inspiration for their work.

PROGRAMS & EVENTS

ADULT ART CLASSES

Acrylic Painting with Still Life and Collage
6 Mondays, 1:00 to 4:00 pm
January 9 to February 13
Cost: $190

This course is designed to provide a basic primer for beginning art students. It will cover the technical aspects of working with the acrylic paint as well as give an overview of concepts relating to colour, composition, figuration, and design. Participants will begin with in-class exercises using still life and move into using collage and photomontage to work on a final composition.

Instructor:
Troy David Ouellette

Drawing
The Still Life
6 Tuesdays, 6:30 to 9:30 pm
January 10 to February 14
Cost: $190

Strengthen your observation and drawing skills by working directly from three-dimensional subject matter. Lessons will include building compositions from thumb-nail sketch to full-value rendering, and explore staging, light, shadow, pattern, texture, and shallow perspective. Subjects may include geometric shapes. Participants will explore the mediums of graphite and coloured pencil. Open to all skill levels.

Instructor:
Jeanette Marshall

Ink meets Watercolour
6 Wednesdays, 6:30 to 9:30 pm
January 11 to February 15
Cost: $190

Become familiar with the basics of ink drawing, then learn how to apply light washes to enhance your sketches. Pen and ink provide for precision and control, while watercolour allows for a looser application of colour. Ink sketching instruction will include observation, gesture, shading, perspective, and composition, while watercolour techniques will include knowledge and handling of the medium and colour theory.

Instructor:
Franca Smith

CENTRE AT THE FORKS

GATHER, INSPIRE, CREATE, DREAM...

Museum London is proud to introduce the Centre at the Forks, a place that will inspire the community through art, history and technology.

This renovation reimagines the Museum and will see us:
• Double the amount of programming space to 4,400 square feet
• Create a flexible space to accommodate a wide array of community programming
• Offer visitors new media experiences to increase understanding and connection with our visual landscape
• Connect the Museum to the river with an expansive, two-story glass wall
• Construct an outdoor terrace for events on the river side of the Museum
• Become accessible for all by installing a passenger elevator

The Campaign
To make the Centre at the Forks a reality, Museum London is launching a $3.5 million campaign.

The Building Fund of $2.5 million is for a space offering innovative programming that is:
• Functional
• Flexible
• Fully Accessible

The Endowment Fund of $1 million will provide a continuing source of income to support annual operations of the Centre at the Forks.

Join us in making the Centre at the Forks a reality by making a donation today.
