

Honouring Volunteers at Museum London

MUSEUM
LONDON

Volunteer Awards

The Phyllis Cohen Volunteer Award

The Dr. Clare Bice Volunteer of the Year Award

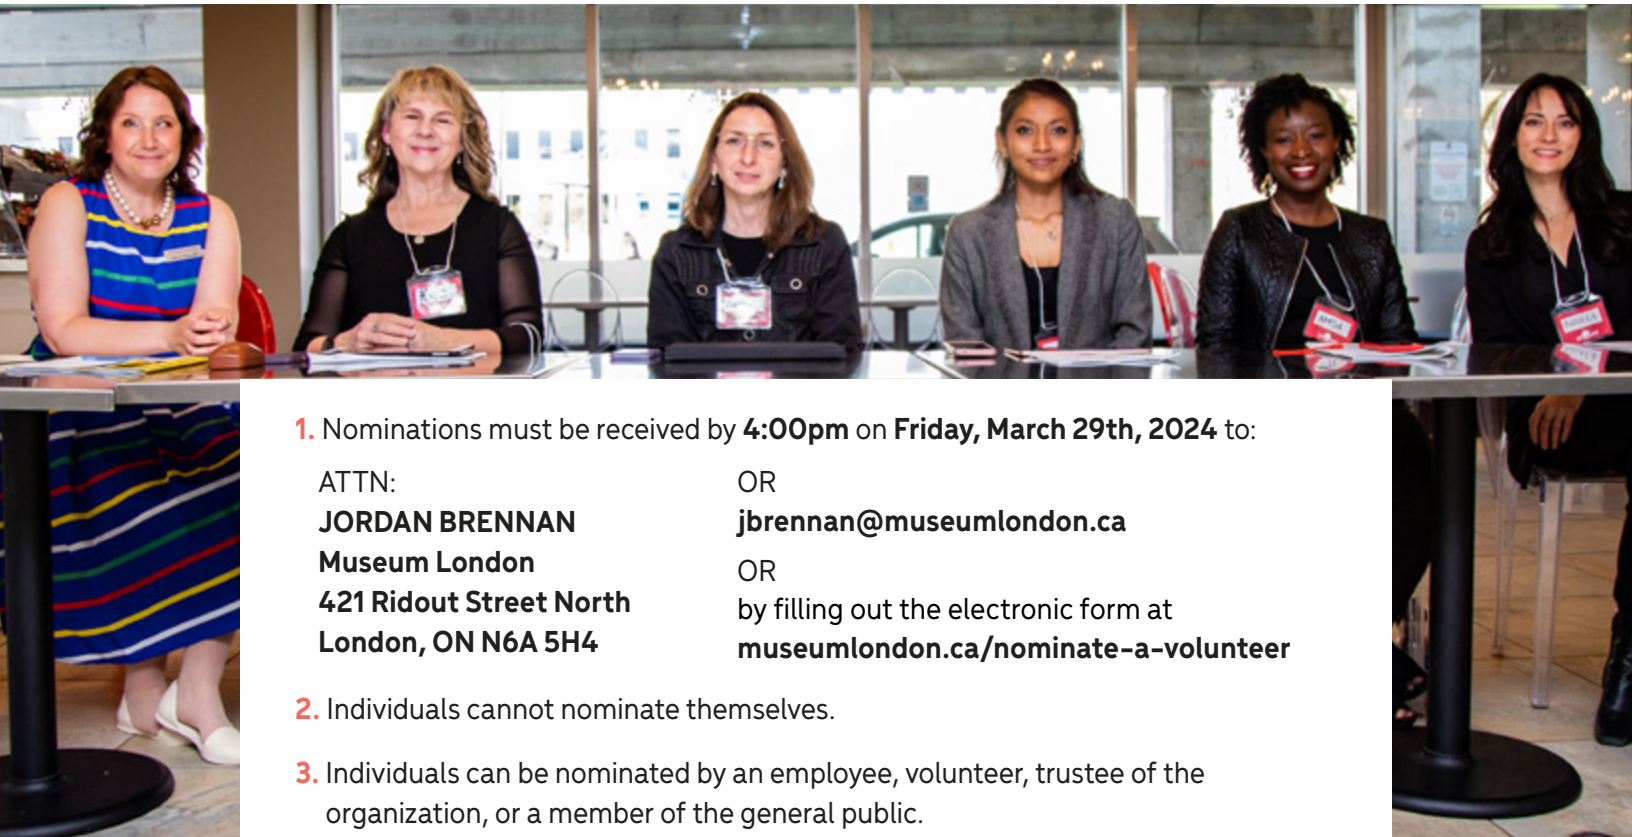

The Museum London Emerging Volunteer Award

The lifeblood of Museum London is its people and at the Museum volunteers have unique and special roles to play. They offer our organization their skills, their commitment, and their caring. By being involved throughout the Museum in a myriad of capacities, they enable visitors of all ages to engage in exciting and satisfying experiences. Through their dedication and enthusiasm, volunteers at Museum London help enhance the high quality programs and offerings for which the Museum is so well regarded.

In recognition of the tremendous work of volunteers throughout all facets of the Museum, and of the growth in volunteer involvement at Museum London, the Board has chosen to establish three annual Volunteer Awards. These awards give the Museum a chance to celebrate and show our appreciation of highly dedicated and energetic volunteers. Another initiative to act as an enhancement to our Volunteer Recognition opportunities this year is our annual Volunteer Appreciation Day to be held as part of National Volunteer Week in April.

Eligibility for the Volunteer Awards, and the opportunity to nominate, are open and inclusive. The nominating and selection process outlined here are meant to foster a large number of applications, and to ensure that three deserving individuals are selected and recognized at the Annual General Meeting of the Museum in May. It is the Board's wish that this process will demonstrate how Museum London and the community-at-large values our volunteers, their creativity, leadership, commitment to art and heritage, and wants to celebrate their importance and contribution.

Phyllis Cohen Volunteer Award

The Phyllis Cohen Volunteer Award will be awarded to a volunteer who demonstrates innovation, creativity, leadership and a positive impact at Museum London by contributing to new projects and initiatives, revitalizing their current volunteer role by providing fresh perspectives and highly focused areas of interest.

Phyllis Cohen brought a deep commitment to volunteering to Museum London, including serving as Chair of the Board. As an avid volunteer in not-for-profit and healthcare sectors along with the arts, she inspired many to donate their time and vision for expanding the quality of life in London, Ontario and beyond. Many artists connected with Phyllis because of her belief in their ability to communicate meaning and challenge their audiences in grappling with issues of our times. In particular, she believed the spirit of art gives all of us the opportunity for a better world. We pass on a piece of her legacy, in recognition of the exceptional contributions of a Museum London volunteer over this past year.

He was also a teacher at the Doon School of Fine Art and the author and illustrator of five children's books throughout his lifetime. Dr. Bice's work conveyed atmosphere and a sense of place and community, not only in his children's stories but also in his paintings of Canadian landscapes. His humanitarian spirit was demonstrated through his determination for life-long learning and his establishment of weekend art classes for children, his Art in the Schools initiative and creation of our art lending library, a legacy that continued until 2023 as Museum London's art rental program. In 1973, Dr. Bice was made a Member of the Order of Canada for his contribution to the fine arts as painter, author-illustrator and gallery director.
